

GETTING BACK TO "NORMAL"

PARTNER WITH YOUR TRUSTED ADVISORS & RESOURCES

Although some services may have been stripped down or put on hold, your business partners are here for you!

Communicate with your trusted service providers to develop a plan for reopening together.

That relationship is vital for getting your communities back up and running.

KNOW THE FACTS

You have probably been bombarded with solicitations for expensive, specialty disinfecting services, products & equipment.

This may be unnecessary unless your community had a confirmed case of exposure to COVID-19.

Spaces that have been closed and untouched for weeks, should be cleaned and prepped for opening under normal guidelines .

SET EXPECTATIONS

We are all eager to resume our day to day schedules. Week 7 of locked down life, has brought out increased frustration and impatience.

When the restrictions start to lift and lighten for NJ, we need to recognize that "business as usual" cannot resume with the snap of our fingers. By putting together a reopening plan with the help of your service providers, you can set a reasonable expectation to your communities.

PROTECT YOURSELF

Sadly, during times of crisis, there are groups that look to capitalize and take advantage of our uncertainty.

If you receive calls, texts, emails, social media ads that seem suspect, trust your gut. Promises of loans and requests for donations should only be trusted from reputable resources.
